

State Security Bans Hassan Zalat From Travelling To KSA For Omrah

Security forces banned Hassan Zalat, one of Muslim Brotherhood leaders, on Tuesday September 16, from traveling to perform Omrah rites in Mekka.

Zalat was surprised by the rejection of the airport officers to let him leave the airport, claiming that this is a "superior order."

Zalat pointed out that he obtained permission from the security authorities to travel to perform Omrah, but after his arrival to the airport with his wife who was scheduled to accompany him, he was surprised by the airport officers who banned him from travel.

Zalat confirmed that this ban is completely unfair and not justifiable.
