

Dr. Salah Abdel Haq's message to detainees and their families on the occasion of Advent of Ramadan

Praise be to Allah Almighty who made the month of Ramadan a month of blessings, a season of drawing closer to Him, and a field of patience and perseverance. Peace and blessings be upon our Prophet Mohammad (PBUH) who taught us that the path of truth is fraught with affliction and the best outcome is for the righteous.

Struggling Brothers and Sisters,

You that though walls have come between you and your families, no barriers or bars stood between you and your Lord.

You that Allah Almighty granted you these days the status of the patient and elevated "for you" the ranks of those who seek reward in solitude.

May the peace, mercy, and blessings of Allah be upon you; and also Allah's mercy that descends upon broken hearts during the nights of Ramadan, mending them; and upon weary souls, bringing them peace.

This year, Ramadan comes while you are in a state of apparent trial, but with God it is an elevation and a blessing. affliction and hardship have never been a sign of failure. Rather, in the history of the righteous it was a gateway to empowerment; and in the lives of the prophets, it was a path of testing and purification. Allah Almighty says: ﴿... Indeed, the patient will be given their reward without account.﴾ (Al-Zumar: 10) Indeed, you are in a divine promise that is not limited by calculation, nor surrounded by imagination.

Brothers and sisters,

Dr. Salah Abdel Haq
